

The RMIT Aviation English Program: development and design

Michael Kay

RMIT University

Melbourne, Australia

This workshop will introduce the RMIT Aviation English Program, including an overview of the courses, the development history and issues that influence the development and maintenance of the courses. There will then be an opportunity for participants to do some online and book-based activities from one of the Radiotelephony English courses. We will conclude with a discussion on the ways the course materials could be used to accommodate different industry and learner needs, drawing on participants' experiences and backgrounds.
